MISSION

To develop charitable gifts and resources dedicated to building healthier communities in southwest Ohio.

VISION

To be the most respected, responsive and supportive source for health care philanthropy in southwest Ohio.
Dear Friends:

There’s nothing more reassuring than a warm hug from friends or loved ones. Their quick embrace lets you know they care.

Here at Atrium Medical Center, our entire reason for being is to care for you and your family. As we embrace your needs, we dedicate ourselves to helping you be as healthy as you can be. Whether you need something as routine as an X-ray or as complex as heart surgery, you can count on Atrium for expert, compassionate care close to home.

At the end of 2011, I completed my first year as Atrium’s president and CEO after serving here more than 30 years. Our team’s unwavering commitment to excellence continues to impress and inspire me. Every day, we strive to bring you the highest level of care – every person, every time. In ways big and small, we’re making a difference in the lives entrusted to us.

Atrium would not be the advanced medical center it is today without the generous and far-sighted support of our valued Foundation donors. You’ll read about some of them in these pages. On behalf of the entire Atrium team, I offer every donor, volunteer and board member my deepest thanks for sharing your time, expertise and financial resources to benefit our current and future patients. Our community is greatly enriched by your giving.

We highly value the confidence you place in us to help you and your loved ones enjoy the best health possible. Thank you for choosing Atrium to care for you.

Gratefully,

Carol J. Turner, FACHE
President and CEO
Atrium Medical Center
The theme of Atrium Medical Center Foundation’s 2011 Annual Report, Embracing Your Needs, reflects our fundamental mission: building a healthier community. Whether it’s cancer, women’s and children’s health, cardiovascular health, emergency care, technology or community education, the programs and services supported by the Foundation help to ensure that Atrium Medical Center meets the region’s needs with the most accessible, highest quality care.

Any organization that strives to take on big issues and create a sustained impact must have long-term vision and clear goals propelled by passion, strategic thinking and careful planning. With the commitment of supporters, volunteers and staff, this approach has helped us further our mission. The Imagine a Cure campaign is just one example of Foundation stewardship – in this case, meeting the need for expanded and enhanced cancer care close to home. To date, the effort has raised more than $1 million. We are deeply grateful to campaign co-chairs Pat and Karen Piccioni for their outstanding leadership.

From a 4-H Club classic car show to the elegant, annual Charity Ball ... from area foundations, to corporations, to generous individuals ... from families grateful for our care of a loved one to physicians who believe in the importance of investing in health care infrastructure – people in southwest Ohio are responding to the Foundation with campaign donations, memorial contributions, endowments and bequests.

The Foundation enjoys support not only from generations of some of Middletown’s most distinguished families, but also from newcomers who have chosen southwest Ohio as a great place to live, work and raise a family. The articles in this annual report are but a sample of this wide-ranging generosity.

We want to express our personal gratitude to all the Foundation Board and committee members, volunteers and staff, and, of course, to our generous supporters. By working together, we’ll continue to embrace our region’s health care needs.

Miriam G. Knoll dedicated her foundation to caring for the city she loved.

A widow with no children, she was a quiet woman, very frugal and dedicated to Middletown. Miriam G. Knoll’s foundation has generously supported more than 30 non-profit area organizations, including Mrs. Knoll’s particular favorites: Miami University Middletown, the Methodist Church, Abilities First and Atrium Medical Center. Mrs. Knoll passed away in 1992 at age 86, but her legacy lives on, embracing and serving the needs of her community.

The Miriam G. Knoll Foundation has given more than $300,000 to Atrium Medical Center Foundation over the past 13 years. In 1999, Knoll Foundation funds helped establish the hospital’s Miriam G. Knoll Heart Failure Center, which assists people with heart failure in managing their condition with education, dietary and lifestyle advice, medication coordination and symptom monitoring.

The Knoll Foundation stepped up again for the Heart Failure Center when the hospital moved to the Atrium campus, and also gave generously to Atrium’s capital campaign and the Imagine a Cure campaign to enhance and expand cancer care. “We are grateful that during significant times in the hospital’s history, the Knoll Foundation has been there for us,” notes Michael D. Stautberg, Atrium Foundation president.

“When her husband died,” recalls Ron Ely, Mrs. Knoll’s advisor, “Miriam became very interested in philanthropy. It became her passion and her life’s work. The Knolls sold their farmland between Middletown and Monroe to the State of Ohio to build I-75. They invested that money well. Upon Miriam’s death, the Miriam G. Knoll Foundation was established with a $4.5 million gift. Mrs. Knoll also left nearly $3 million more to the Middletown Community Foundation.”

Ron remembers bringing $100 in cash each week to Mrs. Knoll’s Stanley Street home. “She led a very simple life and was very careful with her spending,” Ron says. “Since her death, her foundation trustees have tried to carry on the pattern of giving she established in her lifetime – serving the needs of Middletown’s people.”

Support from the Miriam G. Knoll Foundation continues to change the lives of those served by Atrium Medical Center. The Foundation is deeply grateful for her generosity and vision. Mrs. Knoll will continue to touch lives for generations to come.

His wisdom and dedication helped bring excellence in health care to the region.

With the passing of Robert Quentin Millan on February 18, 2012, Middletown lost not only a local trailblazer, but also a leader who shared his expertise at the state and national levels. A World War II Navy veteran, Bob was chairman of the board and chief executive officer for First National Bank of Middletown from 1973 to 1980, and then chairman of the board of First National Bank of Southwestern Ohio until his retirement in 1986.

In 1942, at age 27, Bob became the youngest-ever trustee for the Middletown Hospital Association. He served on the board for 20 years and, until his death at age 96, was the oldest living alumnus of the hospital’s governing body. Thanks to Bob’s expertise, the hospital established sound financial policies that paved the way for dramatic growth, the acquisition of leading-edge technologies and establishment of pioneering cardiac care and rehabilitation programs. Bob was also a lifelong donor to Atrium Medical Center Foundation and a proud member of the Foundation’s Beacon Society for major donors.

Among his many civic activities, Bob taught and started a college program for inmates at the Lebanon Correctional Institute and, for 14 years, served on the State of Ohio Prison Labor Advisory Board. President Ronald Reagan appointed him to the Board of Directors of the Federal Prison Industries, Inc.

In late 2011, the Foundation was fortunate to have a lengthy conversation with Bob about his colorful life and his observations on Middletown’s past and future. Bob’s father, chief engineer at Armco Steel, worked with John Tytus, who developed the continuous roll process that revolutionized the steel industry.
As a young man, Bob was a contemporary of men such as William Verity and John Bauer who would go on to make their own significant impact on the community and beyond. All three spent time at the Gardner mansion courting Eugenie Gardner, daughter of Colin Gardner, Jr., one of Middletown Hospital’s founders. “Jack (Bauer) and Bill (Verity) went off to prep school, but I stayed here and won Eugenie’s hand,” Bob recalled.

Bob and Eugenie were married for 70 years until her death in 2008. The Millans had three daughters: Eugenie, Beth and Cinda. When he died, Bob had 10 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren, all of whom often gathered at the Millan family home adjacent to Wildwood Golf Club.

When asked about the future of health care in the region, Bob simply noted that the more things change, the more they remain the same. “In the beginning, leaders like Colin Gardner, Jr., established Middletown Hospital because it was the right thing to do for the community. Money for health care has always been an issue; it was back then and it is now. But Middletown has always taken care of its people.

“Now our responsibility to each other is even greater,” he continued. “Atrium Medical Center is important not only to Middletown’s future, it is also important to the future of neighboring communities.”

The Ridge family’s commitment to Middletown begins at home and extends to Atrium.

Dr. Jennifer Ridge is a very busy woman – but she does it all with grace, compassion and a deep commitment to family and community. With a thriving dermatology practice, this wife and mother of five teenagers still finds a way to invest time and treasure in preserving Middletown’s heritage and planning for its future.

“My husband, John, grew up in Middletown and loved his childhood here,” says Dr. Ridge. “We both have an interest in restoring ‘old things,’ honoring the past and ushering in the future.” For example, entrepreneur John Ridge founded one of the first internet service providers in Middletown. In 2002, he brought the iconic Jug Restaurant, one of the oldest “hamburger joints” in the country, back to life. In 2004, he established the popular Java Johnny’s Café as a gathering place for a friendly cup of house-roasted coffee or a high-powered business lunch.

The Ridge’s five children range in age from 12 to 18. Son Connor, a Bishop Fenwick High School grad, will begin pursuing a degree in athletic training at Xavier University this year with his sights set on a post-graduate degree in physical therapy. Seventeen-year-old twins Christian, the family’s scratch golfer, and Hannah, an accomplished artist, are high school seniors. Cameron, 16, also at Fenwick, is the musician in the family. Olivia, 12, a 4-H Club member who is in seventh grade at John XXIII Catholic Elementary School, enjoys volleyball and dance.

Over the past 18 years, the Ridge family’s most ambitious project has been the restoration of the 130-year-old, 23-room Gardner mansion, former home of Middletown paper scion Colin Gardner and centerpiece of the Gardner family compound on Tytus Road. “We toured the house as part of a garden walk and soon after purchased it from the late Perry Thatcher,” says Dr. Ridge. “There is so much history here. We feel like curators of a museum. We take that responsibility very seriously.”

The Ridges’ commitment to Middletown extends beyond preserving the past to creating the future. They have generously supported Atrium Medical Center Foundation with donations to the capital campaign to create the Heart Center and the Imagine a Cure campaign to expand and enhance cancer care.

“I believe that physicians should be involved in the whole process of health care,” explains Dr. Ridge. “And that includes building the infrastructure necessary to meet our patients’ needs. Middletown grew up around the old ‘hospital on the hill.’ The Atrium campus is the city’s new centerpiece, a site of growth and development. When you see Atrium from afar, you are seeing the future of Middletown.”

Wausau Paper places a high value on caring for its community.

Short history lesson: Did you know that the paper industry in Middletown dates back 150 years, predating the steel industry? The Erwin brothers built the first paper mill in Middletown in the early 1850s. The Middletown Mill later became the Sorg paper company and eventually, a subsidiary of Mosinee Paper Corporation.

After a 1998 merger, the Middletown Mill officially became a part of Wausau Paper. Although buildings have come and gone over the years, it’s safe to say that today Wausau Paper occupies some of Middletown’s most historic real estate.

Wausau, the towel and tissue industry’s “green” leader, manufactures products from 100 percent recycled fiber for customers serving the away-from-home market, including industrial and commercial buildings, education and government facilities, health care facilities, and the lodging, recreation and hospitality industries. Employing 200 people in Middletown, the company has invested millions of dollars to increase the mill’s competitive edge and to ensure the paper industry’s presence in Middletown for years to come.

“One of Wausau’s core values is a commitment to good stewardship in the communities where we operate,” says Doug Zirbel, who became vice president of Wausau Paper’s Middletown operations in January 2011 after spending 21 years with another company in the paper industry.

“At Wausau, we believe it’s important to help build the infrastructure of our community – and that includes health care. It’s my personal mission to increase Wausau Middletown’s involvement in programs that will enhance the lives of our employees, families, friends and neighbors,” he says.

In 2011, Wausau made a generous donation to help support Atrium Medical Center Foundation’s Imagine a Cure campaign. “A business will not thrive and prosper if it’s not part of its community,” Doug notes. “Wausau tries to set a good example. Everyone can connect with cancer either personally or through a family member. We’re fortunate to be able to count on receiving the most advanced health care this close to home.”

How one man showed his gratitude to those who cared for the love of his life.

When someone you love very much falls seriously ill and others step up to help you give her excellent, compassionate care, how do you say “thank you”? Heath Valentine knows the answer to this question: You share the love.

Heath’s wife, Mary, lost a long battle with cancer on August 30, 2008. “She spent 100 days in Atrium Medical Center,” Heath explains. “That spans 300 shifts of nurses, aides and other caregivers. I was at the hospital every day at all different times of the day. I got to know her caregivers and felt that everyone – from the hospital CEO to the people who swept the floor – was asking, ‘How can we support this family?’”

A talented gardener, decorator and painter, Mary, the mother of two, enjoyed pursuing her love of color and design. “Her caregivers worked to keep that spirit alive,” Heath remembers. “Due to the nature of Mary’s cancer, she needed special attention day and night from bedside care providers as well as from hospital-wide staff. Everyone was extremely capable and caring.”

To express his gratitude, Heath has established the Mary Prentice Valentine Caregiver Appreciation Endowment to benefit Atrium caregivers. It will help support the DAISY Program, which recognizes the extraordinary clinical skills and compassionate service of nurses, and the Hero Program, which honors employees in non-nursing roles for their outstanding service. Award recipients are nominated by their peers, colleagues, physicians, patients and families. Both awards are deeply meaningful to Atrium staff.

The Valentines came to Middletown from Birmingham, Michigan, in 1968. After working for the Magnode Corporation in Trenton, Heath launched his own business and holds patents in the military and highway segments of the aluminum industry. Mary’s occasional part-time work for the company grew into a full-time role as treasurer. The business remains headquartered in Middletown.

The Valentines moved to a new home in Vero Beach, Florida, in December 2007. Several months later, Mary’s cancer took a turn for the worse. Her medical advisors in Florida recommended she return to Middletown for further treatment and support. She was admitted to Atrium and was not able to return to Florida. Heath continues to reside primarily in Vero Beach.

“I have watched Atrium become an important community asset,” Heath notes. “It is leading the area east of I-75 toward becoming a high-tech medical destination. It’s not surprising that the employees are playing a big role in this success. I, for one, am forever grateful for the care they gave Mary.”

Brady and Shannon Fening bring new energy to the annual celebration.

When LaVonne Michael, president of the Middletown Area Federation of Women’s Clubs, called Brady Fening and asked him and his wife, Shannon, to co-chair the club’s 91st Annual Charity Ball, the couple thought about it for a while. Although they had never even attended the event, they said, “Why not? Let’s do it.” And by all accounts, they did a fabulous job.

The December 3, 2011, celebration was held for the first time at Middletown’s Pendleton Art Center. Themed “Light Up the Night,” the event raised $18,000 for the Middletown Area Federation of Women’s Club Endowment for Women’s Health and Wellness. The endowment provides funds to assist uninsured or underinsured patients at Atrium, primarily through the Wilbur and Mary Jean Cohen Women’s Center.

Brady, a Middletown native, is an attorney who works as a compliance manager at First Financial Bank. Shannon, a native of Beavercreek, works part time at Just Jewelry in Springboro. The couple has two children, Olivia, 8, and Alex, 6, both born at Middletown Regional Hospital.

Brady’s father, the late Dr. Walter Fening, and his uncle, the late Dr. Clifford Fening, were obstetricians much beloved by Middletown families. Between them, they delivered close to 15,000 babies over the course of 40 years. “LaVonne called us out of the blue,” says Brady, one of nine Fening children, most of whom still live in the area, “but there was some ‘method to her madness.’ She had known my father and saw a way to tap into our family legacy while bringing some ‘younger’ energy to the Charity Ball.”

Brady enlisted Dr. Jack Varney and his wife, Jayne, as honorary chairs. Dr. Varney, an anesthesiologist who retired in 1989, worked with both Dr. Fenings and is a close family friend. The Fenings put their own spin on the party by adding an 11-piece orchestra and holiday decorations that did, in fact, light up the night.

“This experience was a rewarding adventure for us,” says Brady. “We know if we want top-notch health care for our family, we have to invest in the future. Atrium Medical Center Foundation reminds us to think of others and to put a down payment on health care for generations that follow us. I think my parents and my uncle were definitely smiling down at us in our effort to do something good for our community.”
Organizations join forces to help women in need receive medical care.

Imagine struggling to take every breath because you can’t afford to purchase your prescription inhaler. Imagine missing your chemotherapy session because you have no money for gas. Imagine having to choose between paying your utility bill or your skyrocketing insurance co-payment. There are women in our region who don’t have to imagine these situations. These nightmares are their truth.

Enter Atrium Medical Center Foundation, Women’s Health Issues In Miami-Valley Sisterhood (WHIIMS), and the Power of the Purse, a fund of the Community Foundation of West Chester/Liberty (see sidebar). Thanks to collaboration among these organizations, more Butler and Warren county women are able to quickly secure the emergency funds to meet their health care needs.

In April 2011, Atrium Foundation and WHIIMS requested a $3,500 grant from the Power of the Purse to help create a new patient assistance fund for women unable to afford their care at Atrium Medical Center. Both groups pledged to match the grant and seek additional donors to keep the fund viable. “Lots of women are discharged from Atrium with prescriptions to fill, but no money,” explains long-time Middletown resident Tina Breitenbach, a WHIIMS founder and counselor who also heads up the WHIIMS Distribution Committee. “These women, many of whom face life-threatening illness, are completely overwhelmed with panic and fear.”

“Our committee was very moved by the joint request for funding,” says Kate Feldmann, president of the Power of the Purse Board. “We give away about $10,000 annually and receive about 20 requests for funding each year. We are dedicated to supporting groups that serve women and children, and we like to help new organizations grow. The WHIIMS and Atrium Foundation emergency assistance fund fit this profile perfectly.”

Right, members of the Power of the Purse gathered last summer to socialize and award grants. Top: Kate Feldmann and Susan Hendel address the group. Middle: Doing good while having fun makes for lively meetings. Bottom: Raising money for worthy causes is fun when you can win a purse! At the Power of the Purse event, guests purchase raffle tickets on a wide variety of purses. All proceeds benefit the fund that supports local charities.
MEET WHIIMS

WHIIMS networks with numerous medical and service providers to assist women with emergency access to care and medications. The WHIIMS Board and committees include physicians as well as medical, financial and other skilled professionals who volunteer their time. Women can apply for WHIIMS assistance at Atrium Medical Center’s Social Services, Signal Point Hematology/Oncology, Inc. and Medical Associates of Middletown. Vouchers are often made available within a day’s time.

MEET THE POWER OF THE PURSE

The Power of the Purse is a fund of the Community Foundation of West Chester/Liberty. Its members strive to promote volunteerism and effective philanthropy; educate and increase awareness of local needs; and build a network that is a catalyst for positive change. Since its inception four years ago, the Power of the Purse Fund has awarded more than $40,000 to non-profit organizations.
Community involvement is a way of life for Pat and John Dupps.

“If you are going to live in a community, you have to be engaged,” observes Pat Dupps, Atrium Medical Center Foundation Board member and tireless Foundation volunteer. Pat and her husband, John, certainly practice what they preach.

Together, they chaired the Foundation’s 2010 When You Wish Upon a Star celebration event. Pat also served on the 2007 inaugural gala committee and is on board again planning the third triennial celebration on May 18, 2013. She is a founding member of WHIMS (see related article on pages 16 and 17) and a supporter of Atrium’s HEAL (Help Endure a Loss) Program, which offers support to parents who have lost a child.

John’s grandfather founded The Dupps Company in 1935 in Cincinnati. The business, which designs and manufactures processing equipment, relocated to Germantown in 1940. John followed in the footsteps of his grandfather and father, serving as company president. He retired 14 months ago after 51 years. Pat and John’s nephew, Frank Dupps, Jr., currently is president of the quintessential family business.

In 1984, Pat and John moved to Middletown so they could enroll their three daughters in Catholic schools. “Middletown quickly became our home,” Pat recalls.
John joined the Foundation Board in the early 1990s and served as president for four years. “We did strategic planning around the future health care needs in Middletown and surrounding areas,” he recalls.

During his tenure as president of The Dupps Company, John instituted a multi-faceted employee wellness plan, one of the first of its kind in a smaller-sized company. “We have a doctor and nurse on site one day a week to see employees and their spouses free of charge,” John explains. “This is important for an hourly worker who could lose a half day of wages just to go to the doctor for a simple visit.” It’s not surprising that the Dayton Business Journal recently named The Dupps Company one of the healthiest places to work in the area.

Asked about the future of health care in the region, Pat and John agree that the breadth and synergy of services offered on the Atrium campus serve as a model for the future. Pat says, “The Foundation continues to shine light on the many opportunities we have to build healthier communities.”
Creating an endowment is the ultimate form of philanthropy. The endowment’s permanence can have a tremendous impact over a long period of time. Although its immediate impact may be less than an outright gift, ultimately an endowment provides permanent, perpetual funding.

Atrium Medical Center Foundation is fortunate to have a number of generous endowments supporting a variety of important initiatives that touch people’s lives every day – including cancer care, heart health, women’s services, children’s health, community wellness programs, continuing education for nurses, pastoral care and grief counseling. As the region’s needs evolve, however, so, too, does the need for innovation, growth and long-term support in areas such as patient care, technologically advanced equipment, clinical trials, community outreach and more.

“Endowment gifts are powerful because the principal of the gift remains invested while only the endowment’s annual income is used for the donor’s chosen purpose,” explains Candice DeClark Peace, former Foundation Board chair and current chair of the Foundation’s Planned Giving Committee.

“Establishing an endowment sets a goal for what you aspire toward – your legacy. This continuity and sustainability allows you and your loved ones to take pride in the impact of your gift over time. In short, your generosity today can transform lives for generations to come.” (Read the story behind Heath Valentine’s recent endowment on pages 12 and 13.)

It is not difficult to set up an endowment. “We are happy to help potential donors design an endowment that fulfills their desire to make a difference in a particular aspect of health care in the region,” notes Michael D. Stautberg, Foundation president. Named endowments are always an option.

“The Foundation is extremely grateful for the endowments we have,” he says. “But we know that to fully embrace and respond to the needs of our region – to build healthy communities, as our mission states – we must continue to nurture our financial viability.”

If you are considering establishing an endowment with Atrium Medical Center Foundation or would like more information on the endowment process, please contact the Foundation at 513-420-5144 or Foundation@AtriumMedCenter.org.

On May 20, 2011, golf enthusiasts hit the links at Middletown’s Weatherwax Golf Course for the 17th Annual James A. Combs Memorial Golf Tournament. More than $20,000 was raised and shared by Atrium Medical Center Foundation and the Kiwanis Club of Middletown. 2011 marked the second year that the Foundation and the Kiwanis Club have teamed up to present the tournament.

At Atrium, tournament proceeds support the Dr. E. Ronald Oches Endowment for Children’s Health, which helps meet children’s health care needs at Atrium Medical Center. Kiwanis funds support the James A. Combs and the O.K. Klafter Nursing scholarships for high school seniors sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Middletown.

Patricia R. Combs-Brannaman, widow of the late James Combs and a hospital supporter, returns to Middletown each year for the event. “Jim was an attorney and municipal court judge, and he loved kids,” Patricia notes. “He and Dr. Oches were fellow members of Kiwanis, which does a lot of work on behalf of children. Combining our families’ shared interest in the well-being of our community’s young people made sense. The Foundation and Kiwanis are doing a great job on the tournament. It’s bigger and better than ever.”

Thanks to co-chairs Dan and Steve Dobrozsi and the tournament’s dedicated planning committee for making the 2011 event fun and successful.
When words alone just don’t seem enough, supporting a favorite charity with gifts in memory of a loved one is an excellent way to give family members, friends and colleagues a way to honor the deceased.

Wilburn “Bud” Logsdon’s family decided to pay tribute to his rich life by supporting Atrium Medical Center Foundation with gifts in his memory after he passed away at Atrium on December 28, 2011, at age 76. Bud came to the hospital having suffered a massive heart attack likely followed by a stroke. “We saw many doctors and nurses over the few days my dad was in the hospital,” notes daughter Cindy Carter. “Everyone was so kind to my family – and there were a lot of us here 24/7.”

Bud was an eclectic person – a business man, farmer, 4-H advisor, antique collector and gardener. Most of all, however, he was a family man: husband of Mary Louise; father to five daughters: Cindy Carter, Denice McDade, Brenda Barnes, Amy Darner and Emily Chester; grandfather of 11 and great-grandfather of three.

“When it came time to write dad’s obituary, we decided on the spot to direct gifts in dad’s memory to Atrium Medical Center Foundation,” says Brenda. Bud’s memorial gifts help support the DAISY Award for nursing excellence and will also fund an engraved stone in an Atrium garden. Atrium Medical Center Foundation is grateful to the Logsdon family for their support.

In case you thought 4-H was just about pigs, cows and goats, think again. Kim Weaver, a nutrition services associate at Atrium Medical Center, is also advisor to the Crazy Horse 4-H Club in Madison Township, which includes girls ranging in age from 10 to 18. One of the members is Kim’s own daughter, Mackenzie, a 14-year-old eighth grader in Madison Township.

On October 2, 2011, the Crazy Horse Club sponsored a classic car show – its fourth such event – at the Barn-n-Bunk Farm Market in Trenton. “Before I started working at Atrium,” Kim explains, “a neighbor told me about the hospital’s comprehensive cancer program. The club decided to donate the $1,000 in proceeds from the 2011 show to the Foundation to benefit cancer care.”

When Kim originally brought the classic car show idea to the club, all agreed it would make a good community service project. Proceeds from the club’s first show went to the family of a friend of Kim’s who had lost her battle with breast cancer. The club has also held classic car shows to benefit the Make-a-Wish Foundation and to help another family suffering the loss of a loved one.

“We are gearing up for another show – our fifth – this year,” Kim says. “This one will benefit the Foundation’s Little Blessings campaign for newborns and mothers. After all, we’ve got to take care of all those future 4-H members!”

For 76 years, Atrium Auxiliary Middletown has been a loyal supporter of the hospital with annual contributions that support leading-edge technology, special programs and scholarships. In 2011, the Auxiliary gave more than $80,000 to Atrium Medical Center Foundation, including:

- Final payment on its $100,000 pledge that helped purchase the da Vinci® robotic surgery system
- A second year of support for the Joan Davies Scholarship Endowment for students planning a health care career
- Additional funding for the Friends Program that brings companionship to hospitalized patients
- Support for the MARTTI interpretation on demand system, which allows immediate access via video to translators who assist health care providers in communication with patients
- Ongoing funding for scholarships for area students

“We sponsor many successful fundraisers throughout the year,” explains 2011 Auxiliary president Carole Schul, “but our biggest source of revenue is definitely the hospital Gift Shop.”

“Atrium’s Gift Shop has the distinction of being one of the few at area hospitals that is managed and primarily staffed by volunteers,” notes Joyce Burnett, shop manager. “We must be doing something right. In 2011, we ran a 34 percent profit and made $55,000 for the Auxiliary. Our volunteers and workers are the main reason we have been successful. Each person feels ownership and pride in our accomplishments.

“We also do a lot of listening,” Joyce says. “Sometimes family and friends stop in just because they need a break and someone to talk to. That’s something you can’t put a price on.”
Plan to Join Us for Magic Moments Gala

Mark your calendar now for an evening full of magic moments on Saturday, May 18, 2013. Rick and Saundra Pearce are co-chairing Atrium Medical Center Foundation’s third triennial gala, Magic Moments, which will be held at the Sharonville Convention Center’s new Northern Lights Ballroom in Northern Cincinnati. This black-tie-optional event will benefit patients at Atrium Medical Center. More details will be available soon. Hope to see you there!

Saundra and Rick Pearce, gala co-chairs.
