Winter 2013 • Atrium Medical Center Foundation
New Year, New Plans, New Opportunities

It is my pleasure to greet you in 2013’s premier issue of Caring. First order of business: I want to extend deep appreciation to my predecessor as Atrium Medical Center Foundation board chair, Jim Papakirk. Under Jim’s strategic direction, the board guided the Foundation with wisdom, sensitivity and a strong business sense – all of which I hope to emulate. I’m glad Jim continues to share his expertise as co-chair of the Annual Fund Committee.

In September, I enjoyed being part of the Ohio River cruise thanking members of Atrium’s Heritage Society for including the Foundation in their will or estate plans. (You can read all about it on page 11.) As I talked with our guests that evening, I realized that each one of them has a unique and compelling story to tell about an experience at Atrium Medical Center. It might be about themselves, a family member or a friend, but what these inspiring stories have in common is gratitude. Perhaps it’s appreciation for our compassionate caregivers and expert doctors, or for our comprehensive services and leading-edge technology. It may be because we so lovingly helped bring a new life into the world or because we did all we could to ensure that a loved one experienced a peaceful death.

I believe that people support the Foundation because they want to be sure Atrium Medical Center continues to be a bright light in the community and a beacon of excellence in the region.

United in this gratitude and hope for the future, we can continue to make exciting things happen at Atrium and provide a model for how a successful hospital responds to the needs of its community. As chair of the Foundation’s board of directors, this progress and leadership are high on my list of priorities. I hope you agree.

Elegant Event on May 18 Supports Neuroscience Care at Atrium Medical Center

Moments of magic occur all day, every day at Atrium Medical Center – a baby born, a deadly heart attack thwarted, a stroke caught in time, a trauma victim saved, a patient with cancer given hope, a death made peaceful... and the list goes on. With support from those who so generously give their time and treasure, Atrium Medical Center Foundation helps make this magic happen by hosting special events such as the triennial gala.

Every three years, the Foundation pulls out all the stops with a joyful event that brings together people from across the region who share a commitment to building healthier communities. This year marks Atrium’s third gala. On May 18, we’ll gather to celebrate all the magic moments our families, friends and neighbors across the region have experienced – and will experience – at Atrium Medical Center.

“This triennial event is the Foundation’s single biggest fundraising event,” notes Michael D. Stautberg, Foundation president. “We’re looking forward to Magic Moments – an amazing party with cocktails, great food, music and dancing, emceed by nationally known comedian (and Middletonian) Jeffrey Jena.”

The gala also provides an opportunity to honor community and physician heroes whose personal example, work and commitment to southwest Ohio and Atrium Medical Center have enriched our lives. This year, the hospital’s Medical Executive Committee has chosen to honor Jerry Hammond, MD, and the Gala Recognition Committee has chosen G. Robert and Patricia Miller Gage (see pages 4-5).

Co-chaired by Saundra Pearce, RN, MSN, FACHE, a director of nursing at Atrium, and Rick Pearce, director of operations at the OmniCom Solutions Group, and planned by an energetic and imaginative team of volunteers (see photo below), Magic Moments will be held at the Sharonville Convention Center’s new Northern Lights Ballroom in Northern Cincinnati. “We are excited about this new venue,” notes Saundra. “To make transportation convenient and comfortable for our guests, we’ll offer the option of a shuttle bus running between Atrium and the convention center.”

Past galas have raised funds for Atrium’s Heart Center and for cancer care. Proceeds from this year’s festivities will help support Atrium’s growing neuroscience program, which offers care to patients with debilitating brain and spinal cord disorders, including stroke, dementia, brain trauma and diseases such as Parkinson’s and multiple sclerosis.

“As a health care professional working at Atrium,” Saundra explains, “I see our magic moments firsthand in the difference that expert, compassionate care makes to the quality of our patients’ lives. Technological and clinical advances in the field of neuroscience are breathtaking. We must ensure that Atrium stays on the leading edge with services like our Stroke Program, which is one of only 18 in the state certified as a Primary Stroke Center.”

“I know there are many people who share my passion for this community,” adds Rick. “When it’s time for the gala, we ask you to step up and help support Atrium Medical Center’s ability to deliver advanced health care in a critical area such as heart health and cancer – and now, neuroscience. There are magical things happening in neuroscience. Let’s be sure those magic moments keep happening at Atrium Medical Center.”

Invitations will be mailed in March. For the most up-to-date information, follow the event on Facebook or visit AtriumMedCenter.org/Gala.
PHYSICIAN HERO

Jerry D. Hammond, MD

Beloved family physician. Superb clinician. A humble man of great compassion. These are just some of the ways those who know him describe Jerry D. Hammond, MD.

Notes Middletown internist and longtime friend Barry Robertson, MD, “Jerry is not only an extraordinary physician, he is also a man of great character who always placed his patients first.”

Born in Mayfield, Ohio, in 1933, Jerry attended township schools and went on to earn his pre-med and medical degrees at The Ohio State University. In 1960, Jerry began a medical practice that would span 45 years. As a solo practitioner covering Middletown, Franklin and Springboro, he was on call 24/7/365 and relied on both his office staff and his beloved wife, Jean, to keep him on track. Jean took patient calls after hours and communicated with him via CB radio. Eventually, he had one of the first car phones in the city.

Jerry served as physician co-chair of the Foundation’s 2001 campaign to establish an outpatient dialysis center. In 2003, he joined the hospital board’s Professional Affairs Committee, where he continues to help ensure that Atrium Medical Center staff meet the highest professional standards. He served on the Middletown Regional Hospital board from 1984 until the early 1990s and stepped up again to serve on the Atrium Medical Center board from 2006 to 2012. Now Jerry is lending his expertise to the Foundation board.

Jerry and Jean are the parents of three grown children. After Jean, a popular and dedicated hospital volunteer known for her lovely smile, passed away in 2011, the hospital board established the Dr. Jerry and Jean Hammond Endowment fund to help support rehabilitation, neurological and rheumatoid arthritis services. The endowment also funds an annual honorarium awarded to a family practice physician for excellent service to patients.

The Ohio Academy of Family Physicians has honored Jerry for a half century in medicine, and his colleagues have lauded him for his superb diagnostic skills. But what many of his patients remember is his kindness and willingness to care for those who were unable to pay right away – or at all. Each Christmas, Jerry would select a patient who had been paying off doctor bills regularly and forgive the debt entirely. Many patients over the years benefitted from Jerry’s generosity.

As Atrium Medical Center Foundation’s 2013 Physician Hero, Jerry Hammond is recognized not only as an excellent and dedicated doctor, but also as a caring man. Dr. Robertson aptly observes, “Jerry’s patients and their families will not soon forget his kind spirit and warm heart.”
COMMUNITY HEROES
G. Robert and Patricia Miller Gage

Known for their generous spirit and deep sense of civic pride, the late Bob Gage and his wife, Patti, are recognized as unwavering champions for the city of Middletown and our hospital and health system.

Over the course of almost two decades, G. Robert Gage brought immeasurable energy, vision, sensitivity and wisdom to many hospital and Foundation committees. For 16 years, he served as chairman of either the hospital board of directors or the regional health system’s board of trustees. Under his leadership, the hospital received significant recognition. Bob also served on the Premier Health Partners board of trustees after the hospital joined Premier.

“My dad, Art Bidwell, knew Bob for many years,” says Joe Bidwell, vice president of extrusion operations for Magnode, the Bidwell family’s 65-year-old company located in Trenton. “They came to town about the same time, both as young managers. And they served together for many years on the hospital board. Bob’s heart and soul were always with the hospital and the needs of the community.”

Although many talented people played key roles in establishing the Atrium Medical Center campus, Bob is generally regarded as spearheading the effort. “Bob was a true catalyst for the new hospital,” Joe observes. “His efforts helped give the community a new front door. The area surrounding the I-75 interchange is coming to life, thanks in large part to Bob Gage.” Bob’s sudden death in 2005, at age 73, came just after ground was broken for Atrium Medical Center.

Bob’s foresight regarding the future of health care, as well as his vision for a new hospital and educational opportunities for its workforce, informed the intricate planning, forging of partnerships and steadfastness that fulfilling his dream demanded. In celebration of Bob’s invaluable contributions, the hospital’s elegant, two-story lobby is known as the G. Robert Gage Atrium.

In addition, family and friends continue to give to two funds in Bob’s memory that support heart services at Atrium and scholarships for hospital employees wishing to further their training.

“Bob’s wife, Patti, could have retreated after her husband’s death,” notes Joe, “but instead, she took a step forward to continue his legacy and shape her own.” Patricia Miller Gage’s long-time involvement with the hospital became even deeper. After holding leadership positions on a number of Foundation committees, Patti joined the Foundation board in 2012.

A member of the hospital’s auxiliary since 1971, Patti now is the president of Atrium Auxiliary Middletown, her third time to serve in that role. Patti began her hospital volunteer career as a Candy Striper (today known as a junior volunteer) from 1961 to 1964. Over the years, her journey has taken her from direct patient care to caring support services, such as Meals on Wheels and the gift shop. In addition to her hospital commitments, Patti also is a member of the Middletown Community Foundation board. She and Bob are the parents of four grown children. Spending time with children and grandchildren is one of Patti’s passions.

“Patti is always ready to help,” says Joe. “She has a smile for everyone she meets. And like Bob, she has placed her heart and soul in service to others.”

It’s only fitting that Atrium Medical Center Foundation honors Bob and Patti Gage as Community Heroes for making a lasting impact on our health and well-being—and that of our family and friends across the region.
Embracing Your Needs in the New Year

By Carol J. Turner, FACHE, President and CEO, Atrium Medical Center

As 2013 begins, I’m energized by the opportunities for Atrium Medical Center to embrace your needs in the months ahead.

When you or a loved one needs medical care, our dedicated team is at your service, striving to bring you the highest level of care – every person, every time. In the past few months, we’ve introduced new ways to improve your life. We now offer a full-service Electrophysiology Lab, greatly expanding diagnostic and treatment options for patients with an irregular heartbeat. Our new pulmonary rehabilitation services help people with chronic lung disease live more active lives.

Men and women who suffer from pelvic pain and bowel and bladder control problems can now find relief with specialized physical therapy at Atrium. And those with varicose veins have a new treatment option – venous radiofrequency ablation – with less pain and quicker recovery than surgery. In 2013, we’ll bring you even more innovations focused on your needs.

Stay Connected With CarePages

To help our patients stay connected to family and friends, we now offer CarePages, a free, personalized and private web page to keep in touch before, during and after a hospital stay. We know it can be challenging to share the latest news with all the important people in your life when you’re undergoing treatment. Funded in part by Atrium Medical Center Foundation, CarePages makes it easy for patients to get the emotional support that’s so critical to healing.

Grateful Patients

We believe our promise of excellence demands not only outstanding medical care, but also the human connection, compassion and kindness one person can offer another. So when patients take the time to tell us we not only met their medical needs but also made them feel comfortable, safe and truly cared for, we are thrilled.

Now, the Foundation’s new Grateful Patient program offers an easy way to “pay it forward” and express gratitude to caregivers who made a difference. You can direct your Grateful Patient donation to a particular fund or specific program, or request that it be used for the hospital’s greatest need. We will notify the person you are recognizing, and if you don’t remember his or her name, we’ll help you find it.

Thankful for Generous Donors

In every issue of Caring, you’ve probably noticed the growing list of Heritage Society members who have included the Foundation in their will or estate plans. It was my privilege to join many of them recently for an Ohio River cruise to thank them for their significant support. (Please see pages 10-11 for details.) Truly, they are touching the future through their planned gifts. To each of them – and to every Foundation donor – I offer my deepest gratitude.

As the fourth leading cause of death in the U.S., stroke claims more than 140,000 lives annually and is also the leading cause of serious, long-term disability among adults. Approximately 800,000 Americans suffer a new or recurrent stroke each year. On average, someone in this country has a stroke every 45 seconds, and every three minutes, someone dies from a “brain attack.” Here in Ohio, stroke accounts for more than 7,000 deaths yearly.

Stroke can affect people of all ages. The risk of suffering the most common type of stroke – one caused by a blood clot, called an ischemic stroke – increases with age. Atrium Medical Center’s Stroke Program ensures that everyone living in our region has fast access to excellent stroke care. We are one of only 18 hospitals in the state to be certified as a Primary Stroke Center and awarded the Gold Seal of Approval™ by the Joint Commission, the nation’s oldest and largest standards-setting and accrediting organization in health care. Atrium first earned certification in 2006 and has been recertified three times since then – most recently, this year.

To sustain this certification, our Stroke Program must meet rigorous patient care standards, performance measures and continuous improvement guidelines. Our program coordinator, Tari Walker, RN, BSN, CNRN, and I work closely with Atrium neurologists, Emergency Trauma Center physicians and staff, and the hospital’s emergency medical services (EMS) team. As Tari explains, “This multidisciplinary team is the engine behind our ability to start caring for stroke patients from the minute the EMS squad responds to a call. When the patient arrives, we’re ready to make an assessment and act.”

Timing is critical because if the patient has suffered a stroke caused by a blood clot in the brain, we have only a brief window of time to make a diagnosis and administer the clot-busting drug t-PA (tissue plasminogen activator).

Treatment is likely to include close collaboration with other medical professionals, including nurses, radiologists, laboratory personnel, social workers and rehabilitation experts. In addition, our Stroke Performance Improvement Team meets monthly to review new standards or guidelines in the area of stroke care, examine our processes, and develop action plans to improve stroke care.

In 2011, we treated 171 stroke patients and we surpassed that number in 2012. It’s important for us to stay on point as diagnostic and treatment technologies and procedures advance, and to continue to reach out to the community with education on how to recognize a stroke and, equally important, how to prevent one.

Atrium Medical Center Foundation has been very generous to us by supporting major technology investments that ensure stroke patients are properly diagnosed as quickly as possible. We are pleased that 2013 will bring greater exposure and support to Atrium’s neuroscience services, including our life-saving Stroke Program.
Charles W. Anderson, Owner, Anderson Funeral Home

Born and raised in Cincinnati, Charles graduated from Transylvania University in Lexington, Kentucky, in 1972, moved to Franklin in 1980, and purchased the Eaton Funeral Home and Unglesby Funeral Home in 1983. Known today as the Anderson Funeral Home, the company has locations in Franklin and Springboro. In 1985, Charles launched the Franklin-based Outlook Group, which consults with funeral homes in 13 states. He serves on the boards of Hospice of Middletown, Abilities First and the Funeral Service Foundation, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Jerry D. Hammond, MD, Family Physician, Retired

Dr. Hammond, who practiced family medicine for 45 years in Franklin, Middletown and Springboro, has been recognized by his medical colleagues as an outstanding diagnostician and by the Ohio Academy of Family Physicians for his half-century in medicine. No stranger to leadership at Atrium, Jerry was physician co-chair of the Foundation’s campaign to establish an outpatient dialysis center. He serves on the hospital board's Professional Affairs Committee and was a trustee of the hospital board of directors from 2006 to 2012.

Kirk W. Reich
Vice President, Procurement and Supply Chain Management, AK Steel

Kirk began his career with AK Steel in 1989 as an engineering co-op student at the Middletown Works and became an assistant civil engineer in 1991. In the ensuing years, he worked in various positions at AK’s Rockport Works and Mansfield Works before assuming his current position as vice president of procurement and supply chain management. Kirk holds a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from The Ohio State University and an MBA from the University of Notre Dame.

Samuel R. Lobar Named Director of Major Gifts

Samuel R. Lobar has joined Atrium Medical Center Foundation as director of major gifts. He is responsible for identifying and working with individuals, businesses and foundations interested in making major gifts to the Foundation. Previously, Sam was financial resource development director for the Jewish Federation of Greater Dayton, Ohio. “We welcome Sam’s expertise as director of major gifts,” says Michael D. Stautberg, Foundation president. “His understanding of finance and his strong people skills are valuable assets in areas such as planned giving, estate planning and endowment building.”

Sam hopes to work closely with people who wish to “complete the work of their heart” by joining the Foundation’s Heritage Society (see related article on page 11). “I plan to build upon the great work our staff and volunteers have done over many years with all our supporters,” Sam explains. “Everyone associated with Atrium is all about putting the patient first. I feel very fortunate to work here.”

Sam is a member of the Association of Fundraising Professionals, served as a board member for Jewish Family Service, Cincinnati, for five years, and has been a member of and volunteer for The Valley Temple, Wyoming, Ohio, for more than 22 years. Originally from Boston, Sam holds a bachelor’s degree from Boston University and completed two years of postgraduate study at Hebrew Union College – Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati. He lives in Mason with his wife, Laura, and their two children.

3rd Annual Charity Night at the Tables
March 22, 2013

You can bet that this year’s Charity Night at the Tables will be another do-not-miss, fun-filled event. Co-sponsored by Atrium Medical Center Foundation and Atrium YMCA, the evening of gaming, dining and socializing kicks-off at 7 p.m. at the Cincinnati Marriott North at Union Centre. Proceeds benefit Atrium’s Emergency Trauma Center and help to provide financial assistance at the YMCA, keeping it available to those who need it most.

“This event is an opportunity to support two terrific resources in our area,” says Will Andrew, MD, who along with his wife, Marcia, is co-chairing the event. “This fun night out is becoming an annual tradition and a great way to celebrate the beginning of spring.”

19th Annual James A. Combs Memorial Golf Tournament – May 17, 2013

This year marks the fourth time Atrium Medical Center Foundation has partnered with the Kiwanis Club of Middletown to host this popular tournament, held at Middletown’s Weatherwax Golf Course. Proceeds are shared by Atrium Medical Center Foundation’s Dr. E. Ronald Oches Endowment, which helps meet children’s health care needs at Atrium Medical Center, and scholarships for high school seniors, including nursing scholarships, awarded by the Kiwanis Club of Middletown.

“Kiwanis is all about kids and so is Dr. Oches’ endowment at Atrium. So it’s a good partnership and a worthwhile cause,” notes Dan Dobrozsi, who is co-chairing the tournament along with his father, Steve. Dan is currently president of the Kiwanis Club of Middletown.

The Gift of Life Insurance Coverage

By Tina Y. Whitacre

Tina Y. Whitacre, BS, is an experienced multi-line American National agent with offices in Cincinnati and Dayton. She assists clients with financial decisions tailored to their specific needs and desires, in addition to other insurance products and services.

If you or a loved one has received excellent care at Atrium Medical Center and you’d like to show your gratitude, you have more options than writing a check. Making a gift of life insurance is one of them. You can leave a substantial gift while also benefitting from a current income tax charitable deduction.

A gift of life insurance has the power of creating a substantial, cost-effective contribution in the form of the policy’s death benefit. The result is a donation that is much larger than you may otherwise be able to make.

Unlike a gift made as a bequest in a will, a life insurance gift does not become a matter of public record and is made without the delays of probate. It also allows retention of other assets by the donor’s family.

An outright gift of a policy to a charity, such as Atrium Medical Center Foundation, will create a current income tax charitable deduction (if you itemize deductions) equal to the lesser of the policy’s fair market value or the donor’s basis in the policy. Death proceeds paid to a charity from an estate are usually deductible for federal estate tax purposes. Remaining premiums that you pay are deductible if the charity owns the policy, or you could donate the premium amounts directly to the charity.

How to Make a Gift of Life Insurance

You have three basic choices in making a charitable gift of life insurance. One way is to give an existing policy. In this case, you must assign all incidents of ownership to the charity, making the charity the policy’s owner and beneficiary.

Here’s how it works. You would transfer ownership of a life insurance policy on your life to a charity, like the Foundation, which changes the beneficiary to itself. You may also pay the premiums on the policy, either by paying them directly to the insurance company or by making annual cash transfers to the Foundation, which then pays the premium. More favorable deduction limits apply to the second scenario. At your death, the life insurance company pays the policy proceeds directly to the Foundation as beneficiary.

Another way is for you to apply for a new policy on your life and designate the charity as owner and beneficiary. For this option, you should check state law pertaining to insurable interest (though the majority of states allow a charitable organization to have an insurable interest in a donor). If there’s any question about insurable interest, you could always apply for the policy and then transfer it to the charity.

Finally, you may select the charity as a beneficiary of a policy that you continue to own.

Remember to consult with a life insurance professional or other professional advisor to determine the best option for your individual situation. With their guidance, you can make the most of your power to touch lives and improve health with your generous gift.

For more information about making a charitable gift to Atrium Medical Center Foundation, please contact Michael D. Stautberg, president, at (513) 420-5144 or Foundation@AtriumMedCenter.org.
“Rollin’ on the River” with Atrium’s Heritage Society

September 10, 2012.

It was a beautiful late summer day, ideal for an evening cruise on the Ohio River under the Cincinnati skyline – and a perfect way for Atrium Medical Center Foundation to say thank you to a distinguished group of supporters. Many members of the Foundation’s Heritage Society, who have included Atrium Medical Center Foundation in their will or estate plans, along with some special guests left Atrium Medical Center aboard a chartered bus en route to Destiny, a chartered boat docked on the banks of the river.

“The cruise was a great success and a wonderful way to let members of the Heritage Society know how much we appreciate them,” notes retired oral surgeon Bruce Barnes, DDS, who, along with his wife, Neila, has chaired the foundation’s Heritage Society Committee (see sidebar) for more than a decade. As guests mingled on Destiny’s upper and lower decks, the boat cruised past downtown, paused for dinner and dessert in view of Great American Ballpark where the Reds were playing (and won), and then returned to the dock where guests boarded their bus for the return trip to Atrium.

“The food was excellent and so was the company,” Neila remarks. “New friendships were forged and people who hadn’t seen each other for a long time reconnected. Bruce, Carol Turner (hospital CEO), and Candy DeClark Peace (Planned Giving Committee chair), thanked everyone for coming and took a moment to remind us how important planned giving is to the viability of the Foundation.”

The Heritage Society offers donors the opportunity to leave a legacy – to the hospital and the community. “There are some financial advantages for the donor as well. You can earmark your gift for a special purpose or, as Neila and I did, leave the decision to the Foundation. After all,” Bruce says, “when we are gone, we won’t know what the hospital needs most, but what we know today is that the impact of our gift will live on in the community.”

For more information about planned giving and Atrium’s Heritage Society, contact Sam Lobar, director of major gifts, at Foundation@AtriumMedCenter.org or (513) 420-5144.
