
Robert H. Lustig, M.D. is Professor of Pediatrics in the Division of Endocrinology and Member of the Institute of Health Policy Studies at the University of California, San Francisco.

Dr. Lustig is a neuroendocrinologist whose research focuses on the regulation of energy balance by the central nervous system. He is currently investigating the contribution of nutritional, neural, hormonal and genetic influences in the expression of the current obesity epidemic and diabetes both in children and adults.

Author of the New York Times bestseller Fat Chance: Beating the Odds Against Sugar, Processed Food, Obesity, and Disease, Lustig documents the science and the politics that has led to the pandemic of chronic disease over the last 30 years. Fat Chance debunks the widely held notion to prove “a calorie is NOT a calorie,” and takes that science to its logical conclusion to improve health worldwide.

He is also the author of many articles, chapters and reviews on…

In the fall of 2014, the UVMC Foundation began a five year community health outreach project directed at Miami County’s school children. The Rachel’s Challenge Project was begun in response to the results of a county health needs assessment that indicated that bullying and cyberbullying were significant issues for our county’s school children.

We have now embarked on our second year of this project. School teachers and school administrators have shared that the Rachel’s Challenge program makes an immediate, positive change in school culture. The thank you notes we have received from the students have truly touched our hearts. We know this program is already making an impact on our community’s youth—the most precious asset we have.

The UVMC Foundation is proud to make a high quality program like Rachel’s Challenge available to our community.

And we are honored to have many highly regarded local foundations join with us as funding partners to bring this programming to our community. The UVMC Foundation truly appreciates the outpouring of support we have received.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I wish you and your loved ones a holiday season filled with love and laughter, and a healthy and prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,
Ruth Jenkins, R.N.
Chair,
UVMC Foundation Board

One of the UVMC Foundation’s key initiatives is to bring high quality speakers on current issues in healthcare to our community. These events are underwritten by the UVMC Foundation and members of our community.

On Monday evening, October 26, the McGraw Cancer Awareness Symposium is offering a rare opportunity to local residents. Dr. Robert Lustig from the University of California, San Francisco, one of the top endocrinologists in the United States will be sharing with us cutting edge research on how the current American diet is driving epidemic levels of metabolic disease.

Now in its 16th year, this annual symposium would not be possible without the support of the McGraw Family Fund of The Troy Foundation. I hope many of you will be able to attend. Dr. Lustig is an engaging speaker who very capably translates medical research for the lay audience.

Thank you for your support, the UVMC Foundation couldn’t do what it does without you.

May the New Year bring happiness and good health to you and those you love.

Kind Regards,
Kathleen Scarbrough,
President/Executive Director,
UVMC Foundation
After two missions to the International Space Station on the Space Shuttle Endeavour, Colonel Greg Johnson can attest it’s initially not easy to get one’s feet back on the ground. Johnson, who served as pilot on Endeavour missions in 2008 and 2011, described life as an astronaut including dealing with weightlessness during a July 16 program at Upper Valley Medical Center’s Koester Pavilion.

His appearance was part of the introduction of an Alter-G Antigravity Treadmill now in use at Koester Pavilion. The equipment was purchased by the UVMC Foundation earlier this year.

The Alter-G treadmill was designed by NASA to mimic weightlessness and is used by astronauts as they adjust to the Earth’s gravity following time in the weightlessness of space. Johnson said astronauts gradually return to their earthly skills but aren’t allowed to engage in tasks such as driving for a couple of days.

The treadmill is used at Koester to help seniors recover from surgery, according to Kristy Oding, Koester admissions/marketing director. “It allows weightlessness to the patient to be able to walk, when they may or may not have been able to do otherwise,” Oding said.

Amy Kentner, Koester administrator, approached the UVMC Foundation for funding for the equipment last year. “Amy was very enthusiastic about it and really felt that Koester could make a difference in the lives of their rehab patients with this machine,” said Kathie Scarbrough, president of the UVMC Foundation.

The Foundation Board agreed to support the Alter-G purchase after seeing how it works, Scarbrough said. “The NASA developed technology is very exciting, and our Board was impressed with it and its potential. The Alter-G really helps give patients the boost they need. It keeps them from feeling like they are going to fall so they can concentrate on getting the exercise their muscles need to build back their strength and get back as much of their function as possible.”

Johnson said his inspiration for becoming an astronaut was Ohio’s Neil Armstrong, the first man walk on the moon. He left NASA two years ago and now is president/executive of the Center for the Advancement of Science in Space, a nonprofit that coordinates Space Station work in what he called a new era of space research following the end of the shuttle program. The Space Station work remains vital, Johnson said, because of its focus on improving life on earth.

“There is so much we can learn up there,” he said.

Doctor Uses Humor to Cope in Profession

Dr. Damania shared his story and adventures to the Upper Valley Medical Center medical staff and others during the Weinberger Distinguished Lecture Series program held March 19 at the Crystal Room in Troy. The lecture series is supported by the UVMC Foundation Weinberger Lecture Fund.

Zubin Damania, MD, said as he became personally disillusioned in his career in the medical profession, he turned to a common escape - humor.

“It was like I was living someone else’s life,” Dr. Damania said of his feelings of being disconnected as he worked and taught daily in the medical profession.

As part of self treatment for his own disillusionment, the Stanford University hospitalist first made jokes about the health care system with at times admittedly sick humor. He emphasized, though, that the fun was never at a patient’s expense.

Along with his teaching at the hospital, he began a sideline of performing comedy for medical audiences and then creating rap videos under the name ZDoggMD. The videos, done to the music of popular songs, use satire and often crazy attire to educate people of all ages - one message is self-checks for testicular cancer - along with fellow physicians. The satire and creativity helped Dr. Damania cope, and made him a YouTube hit. It also led him to someone with the interest and money to test a new health care concept in downtown Las Vegas.

Dr. Damania shared his story and adventures to the Upper Valley Medical Center medical staff and others during the Weinberger Distinguished Lecture Series program held March 19 at the Crystal Room in Troy. The lecture series is supported by the UVMC Foundation Weinberger Lecture Fund.

The energetic doctor shared his history - both parents are doctors - and details of his career that has led him to be the director of health care development for Downtown Project Las Vegas. The program promotes wellness at the individual and community level beginning through relationship-based health care.

He thinks today’s physicians can re-energize that aspect of medicine, a patient-physician link, if they make a concerted effort.

“Physicians need to work together to make this happen,” Dr. Damania said.

Despite the challenges in today’s medical atmosphere, the doctor said one thing hasn’t changed. “What a gift it is to be a healer,” he said.

Dugan Event Raises Dollars for Cancer Care Center

The John J. Dugan Memorial Fund for Cancer Care continues to allow the UVMC Cancer Care Center to offer a variety of services to patients. John J. Dugan was an area businessman and Miami County commissioner who was treated at UVMC prior to his death from cancer in 2003. His family chose to honor him through support of the cancer care center.

This year’s John J. Dugan Memorial Reception for Cancer Care was held June 11 at the Shady Spring Stables of David and Clarice Francis.

The event raised over $66,000, the most in the event’s 11 years. Over the years, the fund has raised more than $500,000.

“We are very proud that this event continues to get great local financial support after 11 years. The local community is really supporting their local cancer center, which is a fantastic facility,” said Dugan’s son, Brian Dugan.

Jean Dugan, John Dugan’s wife, said she is pleased to have the facility in Miami County, close to home for patients. “As the years go by, more and more people who have been supporting this event find themselves or a loved one coming to the John J. Dugan Infusion Center,” Jean Dugan said.

“The feedback I have heard is always so positive. This is exactly what our goal was, to have a facility that would give comfort and support along with excellent professional care,” she said. “We need to continue to spread the word that this wonderful cancer care center is here in our community.”

In addition to this year’s venue, the following area residents have opened their homes to host the event: Bill and Wanda Lukens, Henry and Linda Ernst, Dr. Norman and Georgia Armstrong, Tom Hagan, Brent Black, Greg and Laura Stephens, Dave and Sally Waibel and Stacy and Benny Scott. The John J. Dugan Infusion Center first hosted the event as part of its opening in 2012 and again in 2014.

Each day across America, 160,000 school children skip school because they are afraid...
In the USA, one teen attempts suicide every minute...
Over 40% of local middle school students and over 32% of local high school students report being bullied or cyberbullied...

These were some of the statistics that made the UVMC Foundation and Upper Valley Medical Center decide to bring the Rachel's Challenge program to the schools in Miami County. Beginning in the fall of 2014, the Foundation began a multi-year project designed to combat bullying and address feelings of isolation through use of kindness and compassion in daily dealings.

The second year of this community health outreach program has begun, focusing on middle and high school students with the Rachel's Legacy assembly and leadership training programs and the Chain Reaction training for high school students.

In the words of some of our local teens, this is what the Rachel's Challenge program has meant to them:

“I am bullied because I am short and a little chubby but now I’ve learned to forgive the people who made fun of me and be kind to others no matter what.”

“I used to get bullied on the bus because I am Indonesian. Then I heard about Rachel and what she did. She inspired me to be kind to people. I do it so kids and people don’t have to feel the way I did.”

“I was bullied at my old school and the school before that so it meant a lot to me because finally it’s being stopped. Thank you for bringing Rachel’s Challenge to our school.”

“Rachel’s Challenge…….helped me face the death of my father.”

“We have kindness club, chain links team and we create posters saying I accept Rachel’s Challenge. When you sign it means you are to forgive others and yourself, learning from your mistakes, starting a chain reaction. It means so much to me because my Mom and Dad are getting a divorce which means it is very hard for me right now. Just to think a simple kindness can start a chain reaction……thank you, thank you and thank you.”

Rachel is Rachel Joy Scott, the first student to be killed in the 1999 Columbine High School shootings in Colorado. The program is based on the 17 year old’s writings and life. She was an advocate for kindness and compassion, a student who reached out to those new to school and those picked on by others. To learn more about this program, visit www.rachelschallenge.org

The UVMC Foundation extends its heartfelt gratitude to our funding partners who have joined with us to underwrite the costs of the second year of Rachel’s Challenge programming for Miami County Schools.

...childhood obesity, including the academic volume Obesity Before Birth and the popular book The Fat Chance Cookbook.

Prior to coming to San Francisco in 2001, Dr. Lustig worked at St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital in Memphis, TN. There, he was charged with the endocrine care of many children whose hypothalami had been damaged by brain tumors, or subsequent surgery, radiation, or chemotherapy. Many patients who survived became massively obese. This has led him to explore the specific role of fructose (half of sucrose and high-fructose corn syrup) as a specific mediator of both chronic disease and continued caloric consumption. His now notorious YouTube video, “Sugar: The Bitter Truth” continues its popularity with the lay public and has been viewed more than three million times.

He has mentored 20 pediatric endocrine fellows and trained numerous other allied health professionals. He is the former Chairman of the Ad hoc Obesity Task Force of the Lawson Wilkins Pediatric Endocrine Society, a current member of the Obesity Task Force of the Endocrine Society and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Heart Association of the Bay Area. He also consults for several childhood obesity advocacy groups and is President of The Institute for Responsible Nutrition, a non-profit dedicated to eradicating childhood obesity and Type 2 diabetes.

A native of Brooklyn, NY, Dr. Lustig graduated from MIT, received his M.D. from Cornell University Medical College and his Masters of Studies of Law from UC Hastings College of the Law in 2013. In his speeches, Dr. Lustig clarifies the complexities of obesity in an accessible, insightful and often humorous manner.
