The Rachel's Challenge program continues to emphasize compassion and kindness in Miami County schools thanks to funding from UVMC Foundation. Based on the writings and life of 17-year-old Rachel Joy Scott who was among 12 students and one teacher fatally shot at Columbine High School, the program is designed to combat bullying and address feelings of isolation through the use of kindness and compassion in everyday dealings.

Through the UVMC Foundation's project, Rachel's Challenge programs and activities are available for all students in elementary through high school. In addition to the program's formal assemblies, students can participate in clubs with activities that help bring the Rachel's Challenge concepts to life. At Piqua High School, for example, the Friends of Rachel Club (FOR) meets monthly after school and looks at concerns and ideas involving the school climate. "The things we do aren't necessarily large-scale, but our goal is to follow Rachel's theory that one person going out of their way to show compassion can start a chain reaction of kindness," said Morgan Hammiel, a PHS student and FOR Club member.

Miami East schools established a Chain Reaction Day where students participated in activities demonstrating how they would meet Rachel's Challenge. The district's Chain Links Group is made up of Middle School students in grades 6-8 and gives students an opportunity to participate in service, leadership and positive interaction projects. "Miami East and Miami County schools benefit greatly by the Rachel's Challenge program. It is much more than an anti-bullying program," said Allen Mack, principal at Miami East Jr High School. "It's an approach to helping students develop compassion, kindness and positive characteristics versus a preventive thing."

UVMC Foundation's Rachel's Challenge Project funding made it possible for representatives of the Miami East and Piqua schools to attend the Rachel's Challenge summit in Dallas over the summer. The theme was the incorporation of social and emotional learning in the education process. For more information on the Rachel's Challenge program, visit www.rachelschallenge.org. Emergency Department Expansion

... designed to enhance efficient flow and delivery of care for our patients and their loved ones.
MESSAGE FROM UVMC FOUNDATION PRESIDENT

In 2017, the UVMC Foundation is marking its 20th Anniversary of serving the healthcare needs of our community. We are particularly proud of the fact that with the award of nearly $75,000 in scholarships this past summer, we passed an important milestone. Since the Foundation first began offering scholarships in 2001 to those pursuing a healthcare career, we have given over $1,010,000 in scholarships to 846 recipients. Our scholarship recipients – nurses, physical therapists, physicians, pharmacists – are serving the needs of the residents of greater Dayton area. These scholarships truly make a major difference in the academic and future professional careers of our recipients. Many thanks to all our donors that support our various scholarship funds. This investment in the future health of community would not be possible without you.

This current academic year (2017-2018) marks the fourth year that the UVMC Foundation and our funding partners have brought the Rachel’s Challenge program to Miami County schools. This high-quality program provided life-changing training for our youth, focusing on positive interpersonal interactions with the goal of reducing the incidence of bullying and cyber-bullying. On behalf of the UVMC Foundation, I would like to thank our generous funding partners – The Troy Foundation, Miami County Foundation, Paul G. Duke Foundation, Piqua Community Foundation, PNC Financial Services Group, Tipp City Community Foundation, HealthPath Foundation, and many individual donors. This program would not be possible without their support.

Thank you for caring and for your generous support of the UVMC Foundation. May you all have a Blessed and Happy New Year.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Scarbrough
President

MESSAGE FROM UVMC FOUNDATION BOARD CHAIR

Over the past year, Upper Valley Medical Center has expanded and renovated its Emergency Department. The UVMC Foundation is proud to have played an important role in funding this project. The monies provided by the Foundation made possible all the beautiful artwork seen throughout the Emergency Department. Additionally, the comfortable new patient and family waiting room, a Golvo patient lift, and a Lucas Compression Device are all the result of the generous support of our donors and community. All total, over $620,000 was donated to this vital project to ensure the most up-to-date facility to meet the needs of our friends, neighbors, and loved ones.

Over the past three years, the UVMC Foundation has committed nearly two million dollars in funds for various projects and programs at Upper Valley Medical Center. Without the generous support of donors like you, this level of commitment to the health of our community would not be possible. Thank you for your support and continued generosity.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I wish you and your loved ones a prosperous and healthy New Year.

Sincerely,
Michael Gutmann
Chair, UVMC Foundation Board
The expansion of UVMC’s 18-year-old emergency department (ED) more than doubled the available space from 16,800 square feet to more than 43,000 square feet. The expansion project also included renovation of the existing emergency department which converted space into a new entrance for the east end of the building; the new triage area; a new lobby for the larger emergency department; and a home for dedicated medical imaging in the emergency department.

The UVMC ED is on track to see more than 50,000 people this year, said Mary Boosalis, President of Premier Health.

“The growing need for these services could easily overwhelm a community hospital if it didn’t expand its capacity to care for those patients. I’m proud that Premier Health and Upper Valley Medical Center are partnering to address this demand,” Boosalis said.

The renovations included a room for breastfeeding mothers and space for a designated physician work within the emergency department, which has not been possible in the past. The flow for the (EMS) squads was also improved.

Diane Pleiman, UVMC Vice President of Operations & Chief Operating Officer, who coordinated the project administratively, said the additional area provides new patient care spaces – treatment rooms, trauma rooms and support space for physicians’ staff and patients. The rooms are larger and each has designated family and patient care areas.

“All of the rooms are laid out identically, which is extremely important for patient safety,” Pleiman said. “As a caregiver, when I walk in a room, I don’t have to look for equipment because it is in the same location in every room. That is crucial when seconds count.”

In addition to increasing the overall ED space and treatment room size to accommodate today’s patients and caregiver needs, the project was designed to enhance efficient flow and delivery of care for our patients and their loved ones.”
Over the past 13 years, the Upper Valley Medical Center cancer program has received more than a half million dollars in donations from fundraising events sponsored by the family of the late John J. Dugan in his honor.

This year’s event, held June 8 at the UVMC Cancer Care Center, pushed total contributions over $575,000.

“The Dugan family’s continuous support has really helped us tremendously,” said Jean Heath, Director of the Cancer Center.

“The benefit event has helped fund projects designed to enhance cancer patient comfort and convenience in a healing environment, such as a medical massage therapy program and a healing garden outside the center,” said Kathie Scarbrough, President of the UVMC Foundation.

This year’s proceeds will go toward continued support and expansion of evidence-based integrative/complementary medicine therapies and modalities available to patients as well as education and cancer screening programs for the community.

“I know my husband would be absolutely flabbergasted that this has gone on for so long and for what a wonderful institution this is,” Dugan’s wife, Jean Dugan, said in thanking supporters at the reception. “My husband was a great supporter of UVMC,” she said. “He died in 2003 from complications from esophageal cancer. Our family decided the best way to honor his memory was to support the UVMC Cancer Care Center.”

John J. Dugan was a Miami County commissioner, local business man and supporter of UVMC. The infusion center at the Cancer Care Center is named in his honor.

Local cancer survivor Gail Reardon was the featured speaker at the reception. She shared the story of her cancer journey, which began just before Christmas and included surgery and subsequent treatment and infusions at the center.

“Everyone here is so unbelievably nice and accommodating. It is a scary thing to go through, and you just feel you are getting a little bit of extra care here,” Reardon said, thanking the Dugan family for their generosity. “We are blessed to have such a beautiful center that offers comfort and professional care,” she said.

Brian Dugan thanked Reardon for sharing her experience. “Your story is why we have this facility,” he said. “To have this event at this facility lets us know what it is all about, to have this kind of first-class facility in the county.”

The message of Operation Street Smart is to raise awareness on drug trends, terminology, paraphernalia and concealment techniques among those who interact with youth. Some kids in eighth grade “know more about drugs than law enforcement. We have to change that. You have to be aware of what’s out there,” said retired Sgt. Mike Powell in explaining the Operation Street Smart program held Sept. 7 at Edison State Community College.

More than 150 people working in law enforcement, schools, health care and social services, along with parents, participated in the program presented by the Franklin County Sheriff’s Office in Columbus. It was sponsored by the Upper Valley Medical Center Emergency Department and the UVMC Foundation.

Powell and Sgt. Dan Johnson were among those who covered a range of topics from identifying drugs of abuse to detecting drug use to sharing a collection of products available for purchase to conceal drugs. The concealment items ranged from what appeared to be name brand chewing gum containers, to a variety of fake lipstick tubes, a lint roller and an array of items that could be transformed into smoking pipes. Creative flasks for alcohol included an umbrella and the base of pom poms.

The team provides the program around 155 times a year with increased demand as the opioid epidemic grows.

“This problem is all of our problems, not just addicts and families,” Johnson said. Powell added, “We are not here to demonize anyone who struggles with drug abuse.”

UVMC’s Cancer Care Center team thinks an inflatable colon offering a larger than life look inside a vital organ can help spread the word about colorectal cancer and its prevention. The 12-foot long, 12-foot high colorful tunnel will allow people to take a walk through the vital organ and learn from displays about healthy tissue, polyps, malignant polyps, inflammatory bowel, and a cancerous mass.

The tunnel was purchased by the UVMC Foundation and the John J. Dugan Memorial Reception for Cancer annual event to support the Cancer Care Center. “This will help us to more effectively educate our community and the surrounding areas,” said Caitlin Conaway, Cancer Coordinator, UVMC Cancer Care Center. She said the tunnel is a way to help people participate in discussions about colon health. “It has been such a difficult topic to engage people in, and I think this is a huge step in breaking that ice and providing meaningful education,” Conaway said.

Jean Heath, an UVMC Director of Nursing who oversees Cancer Care, said goals include making colorectal cancer a topic people will talk about openly, as they now do about breast cancer. “The more people we can educate, the better people will be and understand what colorectal cancer is and not to ignore the signs and symptoms. Early detection is most important,” Heath said.

The tunnel already has made public appearances throughout the county.
As she approached her 40th birthday, entertainment journalist Samantha Harris had it all – a booming career, a beautiful young family – when breast cancer intervened.

Harris shared details of the discovery of her cancer, including finding a lump in her breast 11 days after receiving clear mammograms results, and the decision to undergo a double mastectomy and reconstruction surgery.

“When I got the news, the only thing I thought of was my husband and kids,” she said. She went public with the diagnosis and shared details of the surgery and recovery with television viewers.

“After the diagnosis, I was physically and emotionally exhausted,” she said. “I made a conscious decision to pick myself back up, to think positive.” As she recovered, she and husband, Michael, founded Gotta Make Lemonade, an organization that includes a website for people to share stories of positivity in the face of adversity.

Harris, who is three and a half years out from her surgery, said “each and every day is a celebration.” She acknowledged cancer survivors in the audience, saying those who went before her in the journey gave her courage strength to move forward.

“Women rock … How amazingly strong are we ladies,” Harris said. “It is all about being resilient. It allows us to thrive and be empowered.”

The fact she discovered a lump so soon after a check points to the importance of each person being their own health advocate. Among her advice to others was to know their own bodies, exercise, do self-exams, and get regular mammograms.

The annual symposium is sponsored by the UVMC Foundation and the UVMC Cancer Care Center. It is named in honor of Bill and Ruth McGraw, who between them had cancer five times but neither died from the disease. The program is made possible by a gift from the McGraw Family Fund of The Troy Foundation and a grant from the UVMC Foundation.
